These fourteenth century parks or parrocks were simply enclosures from the wild woods, and among them were Waterpark, Parkamoor, and The Book of Coniston Park which we have passed. In it was in the occupation of Josiah Hudson, Esq. There used to be an old book with his name in it and " Fulke Greville is a good boy " scribbled in an antique hand on a fly-leaf. Unfortunately there has been a problem with your order. Note an ice-smoothed rock on the right, showing basalt in section. As the plots were widely scattered over Lanca- shire, The Book of Coniston, and Cumberland, it must have been no light labour to manage. Their ancestor had come from Gosforth, Cumberland, about 1690, and is said to have acquired it by marriage from the Walkers, who held the land in freehold, not, as usual hereabouts, in 68 THE BO.
